As a special, limited time, promotion to make our books more widely known to teachers, students and the educational community, we are offering school libraries a free copy of Tracing Our Past ~ A Heritage Guide to Boundary Bay. Value $27.95

Enjoy this beautifully illustrated guidebook to our local landscape, suitable for teachers and students alike. Particularly well suited to Social Science and Environmental Biology classes, the book tells the story of our landscape and the people who transformed it. Explore the history of our coastline, from the last Ice Age to the environmental challenges facing us in the modern day. The resources of ocean, river and land have supported five hundred generations in and around Boundary Bay. This area has been the scene of immense changes in the last two hundred years and the pace of change is accelerating.

Our community's history of fishing, dyking, logging and farming are illustrated with archival and modern photographs. Learn about local Coast Salish, multicultural explorers, settlers, fishers, farmers, developers, naturalists and conservationists, and the relationship all these people have to the changing land, river and ocean. A destination section at the end of the book gives ideas on museums and other places to go to see heritage sights.

"Well researched, well written and intelligently presented, a beautifully illustrated local history not to be missed by anyone with an interest in how this area got to be the way it is" ~ Derek Hayes, historian and author

Tracing Our Past ~ A Heritage Guide to Boundary Bay is a companion guide to the popular A Nature Guide to Boundary Bay. Both books cover Boundary Bay and its watershed, including Surrey, White Rock, Delta, Langley and Richmond.
